REPORT.

The task of compiling a complete and accurate account of the Soldiers of Danvers, is an impossible one, but careful and effective work has been attempted by your committee in the hope that their report will be received as a fair testimonial of their services, and as a lasting memorial to the brave men who have claimed Danvers as their home.

That two years should be needed to prepare a report such as this is, is not to be wondered at, when it is considered that nearly if not quite one thousand letters of varying character have been mailed, that but a very small percentage of the persons addressed have paid any attention to the questions of the committee, and, that in the records of the State and National Departments exist errors innumerable.

The records of the town have been carefully consulted for information leading to any suggestions of error on the records of the adjutant-general's department* at the State House, and whenever such have been found, from any source, that department has willingly and promptly requested information from Washington, which has as promptly been supplied. By these means many errors and omissions have been corrected at both those offices. That mistakes should have occurred was unavoidable. It is strange that they were not found in greater number. That there are numerous instances in the report we make to you is probable. Cases will be found where men were credited to towns entirely without their knowledge, and so erroneous is the record of bounties that the committee have omitted that item entirely in the printed report, but the amounts can be examined by any proper person, in the original manuscript.

*Thanks are especially due to Mr. John Baker of that department, whose acquaintance with the various records in his charge is remarkable.

The greater part of the expense contracted by your committee is, of course, accounted for by this report, and we pride ourselves that it has been so slight, considering the variety, remoteness and miscellaneous character of the records consulted.

The committee has held twelve regular meetings at each of which except upon rare occasions, all of the members have been present. Several informal gatherings of the committee have been held, and throughout our existence as a committee the utmost harmony and combined effort has prevailed. The greater part of the labor of preparing the record has fallen upon the chairman, who from his profession and knowledge of the sources of information was selected to collect and arrange the material, which, however, has been carefully inspected in detail by the several members of the committee.

It was thought best to add as an appendix some account of the soldiers of Danvers in other than our late war*, and we have endeavored to present a record of our men in the Indian and French wars, the Revolution, the War of 1812, Mexican war, and some account of our early and present militia organizations.

A feature of this report is the preservation of the family records of our soldiers. Here we may have made some errors and crave your indulgence, but that in the generations to come, the same honor and veneration will be paid to the men of 1861 as is now paid to the heroes of 1775 is undoubted, and our descendants and successors will thank us for placing on record some account, however fragmentary, of the families and lives of the soldiers.

It is earnestly hoped that every person having knowledge of any

*The number of enlistments in the Union Army was 666, of whom 552 were native born. The places of nativity of the men as far as can be ascertained are as follows: Danvers, 125, of whom four were of Irish parentage; other towns in Essex, 98, of whom one was of Irish parentage; other places in Massachusetts, 39, of whom three were of German parentage; New Hampshire, 43; Maine, 45; United States, 202, of whom eight were negroes, and thirty-five of Irish parentage (probably many in this division are Danvers born); Canada, 30, of whom twenty-seven came from the Maritime provinces; England, 15; Scotland, 13; Ireland, 47; Germany 9.

There were at least thirty-seven Danvers men in the naval service, and forty-nine additional records are appended, of men who have lived or died in Danvers. Thus the records of 796 separate individuals, who served in the Rebellion are printed.

We have gathered information relating to 139 French war soldiers in addition to the names given in the historical sketch; and some 300 Revolutionary soldiers in addition to an equal number of Lexington Alarm men. Mention will also be found of others who were probably in the service for longer or shorter periods.

Over 1800 names of soldiers or sailors born or resident at some period in Danvers are printed in this report.

soldier born in or credited to Danvers will inspect this report, will note the various records, and send to your committee, or to the town clerk, all corrections and omissions, however gross or slight, that, as nearly as possible, a correct record may in time be obtained by the town.

We cordially extend to all of the many persons who have contributed aid and information, our grateful acknowledgments; to the great interest exhibited by a few, is, indeed, due the accomplishment of our task.

Danvers has had in the past a great history and has given birth to a race of warriors. She has had no occasion to be ashamed of her men; an intensely military and patriotic spirit has always influenced her citizens, as the record will show. It behooves us to place upon record both in print, and on stone and brass, memorials to those of her citizens who have fought for and guarded the nation.

Respectfully submitted,

EBEN PUTNAM,
WALTER S. LOVEJOY,
JOHN W. PORTER,
MALCOLM SILLARS,
ANDREW NICHOLS.

*In reply to a letter sent out by the Adjutant General, dated 9 Dec., 1865, seeking information as to the character and behaviour of discharged soldiers, etc., the following answer was returned from Danvers.

"The soldiers who have enlisted from this town have, on the whole, come back better men than when they entered the service. Up to this time none have been convicted of crime, and those who, before entering the army, were addicted to intoxication have some of them reformed, and almost all drink less. So far as we know they have gone to work immediately, and no families are in better circumstances than those of the soldiers."

(Signed) J. A. PUTNAM, for the Selectmen.

BRIEF HISTORICAL SKETCHES OF ORGANIZATIONS OF WHICH DANVERS MEN FORMED A PART.

1ST REGIMENT INFANTRY.

Composed chiefly of the 1st Reg. M. V. M. and left camp the 15th of June, 1861; passed through Baltimore, the 17th of June and arrived at Washington the same day.

It was engaged at Bull Run, the 21st of July, 1861; at Williamsburg, Fair Oaks, Glendale, Malvern Hill, Kettle Run, 2nd Bull Run, Chantilly and Fredericksburg, in 1862, and at Chancellorsville, Gettysburg and Locust Grove, in 1863. In August, September and October it was on garrison duty in New York Harbor. Engaged in the Wilderness and Spottsylvania Court House in 1864. Mustered out the 28th of May, 1864.

This regiment lost 171 men killed, and 643 discharged for disability. At Chancellorsville, Stonewall Jackson was killed by his own men while reconnoitring, but the 1st Mass. claimed that on that very day a party of rebel officers approached their lines so closely, thinking them rebels, and under the conditions described by Jackson's party that they were enabled to open fire at close range. They claimed that Jackson was wounded by that fire.

This was the first three year volunteer regiment that reached Washington.

2ND REGIMENT INFANTRY.

Mustered in the 11th of May, 1861, and left the state the 8th of July, 1861, and that year was engaged at Jackson, Va. In 1862 it was at Mont Royal, Winchester, Cedar Mountain, Antietam and Fredericksburg, and in 1863 at Chancellorsville and Gettysburg, and like the 1st was ordered to New York City for the suppression of the draft riots, in the late summer of 1863. In 1864 it was a part of Sherman's army in his march through Georgia.

A great many of this regiment re-enlisted. Mustered out the 14th of July, 1865. Passed through Richmond the 11th of May, 1865, on the march home from the South, where they had taken part in Sherman's campaign in the Carolinas.

5TH REGIMENT, M. V. M.

It was out for three months in 1861, taking part in the Battle of Bull Run, and upon the call for troops for nine months, volunteered as an organization and went into camp at Wenhams. In Oct., 1862, it was ordered to Newbern, N. C., where it took part in the various engagements, as Kingston, Whitehall, Goldsboro, and performed much arduous service.

July 28, 1864, the regiment was again mustered into the United States' service and left for Washington. During its first term of service, Col. Lawrence was in command. Col. Pierson, of Salem, was in command during the two later campaigns. Quite a large number of Danvers men went out in the first three month's campaign.

6TH REGIMENT, M. V. M.

This was the second regiment to leave the state on the call for troops, and in passing through Baltimore on the 19th of April, was attacked by a mob.

It was also out for nine months in 1862 and 1863 and stationed at Suffolk, Va., and again in 1864 for 100 days when it was stationed at Fort Delaware, Md.

8TH REGIMENT, M. V. M.

This was one of the first regiments to respond to the call for troops in April, 1861. The Salem Light Infantry left Salem in the morning of the 18th and under the command of Gen. Benj. F. Butler arrived at Annapolis on the 21st of April, where was lying the old frigate, Constitution, which was manned and carried to N. Y. The regiment was on duty about Washington and Baltimore.

In 1862 upon the call for nine months men, the Eighth responded and went into camp at Wenham, and in November sailed for Newbern, N. C., where the regiment was repeatedly called upon for sharp work in reconnoitring, etc., besides having many of its companies detached upon garrison duty. Leaving Newbern in June, they were detained at Baltimore and attached to the Army of the Potomac, but were finally mustered out Aug. 7, 1863.

In 1864 they performed garrison duty at New Bedford. Co. K of this regiment, Capt. Albert G. Allen, was a Danvers company.

9TH INFANTRY.

This regiment was mostly composed of men of Irish parentage. It arrived in Washington the 29th of June, 1861, and was engaged in the battles before Richmond, and in 1862 at Fredericksburg and in 1863 at Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, and Mine Run. During the winter of 1863-64 the regiment were looking after the rebel raiders, especially Mosby and the Black Horse Cavalry.

In 1864 it took part in the battles of the Wilderness, Spottsylvania, Shady Oak, Cold Harbor, etc. Mustered out on the 21st of June, 1864. Loss, 174 killed.

10TH INFANTRY.

It left the state the 25th of July, 1861. It was engaged in the battles before Richmond, and at Fredericksburg in 1862. In 1863 it took part in the battles of Chancellorsville, Gettysburg and Rappahannock Station. In 1864 at the battle of the Wilderness, the regiment lost one third of its force in killed and wounded on the first day. During the succeeding engagements it was constantly in action. It was ordered home in June and mustered out on the 8th of July, 1864. Lost 110 killed.

11TH INFANTRY.

It was mustered in the 13th of June and left the state the 24th of June, 1861. It was at the battle of Bull Run, and in 1862 in the battles before Richmond, second Bull Run and Fredericksburg. In 1863 it was in the battles of Chancellorsville, Gettysburg and Locust Grove.

In 1864 it was in the battles of the Wilderness, Spottsylvania and North Anna.

In June those whose term of service had expired, returned to Boston, and the remainder were strengthened by men from the 1st and 16th regiments. The regiment was engaged at Cold Harbor, Petersburg, and several other lesser battles. Discharged the 14th of July, 1865.

12TH REGIMENT.

It was raised by Col. Fletcher Webster who fell in battle. It left the state the 23rd of July, 1861, and was engaged at the battles of Cedar Mountain, 2nd Bull Run, Antietam and Fredericksburg in 1862, and at Fredericksburg and Gettysburg in 1863.

In 1864 it was a part of Grant's army in his campaign against Richmond. It was engaged in the Wilderness, Spottsylvania, North Anna, Cold Harbor, Petersburg, etc. Mustered out the 8th of July, 1864.

13TH INFANTRY.

It left Massachusetts the 30th of July, 1861. It was engaged in the battles of 2nd Bull Run, Antietam and Fredericksburg in 1862 and at Fredericksburg and Gettysburg in 1863. It was engaged at Spottsylvania and North Anna. Cold Harbor and Petersburg. During this campaign the regiment numbered on duty but about 150 men. Discharged the 16th of July, 1864.

17TH INFANTRY.

This regiment was recruited at Lynnfield and was composed, with the exception of one company each from Suffolk and Middlesex, of Essex County men. Co. C was almost entirely composed of Danvers men. Mustered in July 22, it left the state under the command of Lt. Col. Fellows, 23 Aug., 1861, but was soon after joined by its colonel, Capt. Amory, U. S. A.

During 1861 the regiment was stationed near Baltimore and in Accomac Co., Va., but in the spring of 1862 was ordered to Newbern, N. C., where it engaged in its first battle of consequence, viz., at Kinston and Goldsboro, behaving with great gallantry.

At Goldsboro, Co. C, commanded by Capt. Fuller, did good work on the skirmish line. In the expedition to relieve Washington, N. C., the regiment had to retire with the loss of several men as it was impossible to face the great odds brought against them. The second attempt was successful. During the remainder of the year the regiment was constantly on the alert and took part in several small engagements. On Feb. 1, 1864, while supporting the 132d N. Y. Inf., near Bachelor's Creek, Col. Fellows, with 7 officers and 58 men were captured.

In July, Co. C was stationed at Brice's Creek.

July 16, the men whose term expired July 21, embarked for home and the remainder of the regiment was consolidated into companies A, B, and C, under command of Capt. Henry Splaine. This battalion was mustered out 11 July, 1865. In Mar., 1865, 450 recruits from the 2d H. A. were transferred to the 17th.

At the battle of Wise's Forks near Kinston, 7th to 10th March, the regiment did gallant work and contested against overwhelming numbers every inch of ground.

On the 24th March, junction was made with Gen. Sherman and line of march for Raleigh taken up. The regiment reached home July 19, 1865.

23RD INFANTRY.

It left the state, the 11th of Nov., 1861, and was encamped for a time at Annapolis, Md. In Jan., 1862, the regiment sailed for Roanoke Island and took part under Burnside in his campaign. In March they landed at Newbern and took part in the operations about there in 1862 and were in the battles of Kingston, Whitehall, Goldsboro. Wilcox's Bridge and Winton in 1863.

April 26th, 1864, they embarked at Portsmouth for York river and joined Gen. Butler, but in May were detached to reenforce the army of the Potomac and took part in the battles of Cold Harbor and Petersburg. In September they embarked again for Newbern. Those whose terms expired were mustered out the 28th of Sept., 1864. The balance of re-enlisted men and recruits the 25th of June, 1865.

The 23rd took an active part in the so-called second battle of Kinston, see the 17th Inf.

There were quite a number of men from Danvers in the various companies of this Regiment.

35TH INFANTRY.

Mustered into the service the 21st of Aug., 1862, and left the state the next day. This regiment participated in the battles of Antietam, Fredericksburg, Jackson, Spottsylvania, North Anna, Cold Harbor, Weldon R. R., South Mountain, Vicksburg, Petersburg, and many other engagements.

The regiment had a large number of foreigners sent to it while in the field, which caused jealousy and some bad feeling. This feeling passed away in time and the report of the commanding officer is that these men behaved well. Mustered out the 9th of June, 1865.

There was quite a large number of Danvers men in this regiment.

14TH REGIMENT INFANTRY AFTERWARDS 1ST HEAVY ARTILLERY.

This was organized almost entirely from Essex County and was frequently alluded to in '62 as the "Essex County Regiment." It was mustered in at Fort Warren the 5th of July, 1861 and on the 7th of August left for Washington. Co. I of this Regt. was a Danvers company.

The regiment did garrison duty at Ft. Albany and Ft. Runyon, before Washington. On the 1st of Jan., 1862, by orders of the War Dept., the regiment was changed to 1st Mass. Heavy Artillery regiment and the additional men required to bring it up to the standard immediately sent forward. Until the 26th of Aug., the regiment did garrison duty in the forts before Washington but were on that day ordered to Manassas.

On the 28th a number of the regiment were taken prisoners by the enemy, but paroled. During the remainder of the year and the next year the regiment was actively engaged in guarding the defenses before Washington, etc. In June, 1863, Co. L was ordered to Winchester and lost its captain, and 44 men were taken prisoners, thirty-six of whom rejoined the company, Oct. 14.

On the 15th of May, 1864, the regiment marched to join the army of the Potomac, and for the remainder of their term of service were actively engaged at the front participating in the battles of Spottsylvania, North Anna, Tolopotomy, Cold Harbor, Petersburg, Strawberry Plain, Deep Bottom and other engagements. Mustered out the 16th of Aug., 1865. I Company of this regiment were the Putnam Guards, a company almost entirely composed of Danvers men. The company went into camp June 24, 1861, at Fort Warren. Judge A. A. Putnam of Uxbridge, has published an interesting and valuable account of the formation and early history of this organization of which he was the first commander.

2ND HEAVY ARTILLERY.

The companies composing this regiment were mustered in at various dates between Sept., 1863 and Jan., 1864. During its term of service the regiment was stationed in North Carolina, Newbern, etc., and Virginia, and the greater part of the regiment was never engaged in battle.

Companies G and H, about 275 men, were captured at Plymouth, N. C., and were confined in Andersonville. But thirty-five rejoined the regiment. Mustered out the 3rd of Sept., 1865.

3RD REGIMENT, HEAVY ARTILLERY.

This regiment was composed of the 3rd, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th and 16th unattached companies of heavy artillery, of which the first eight were originally raised for, and for a time were on duty in the coast defenses of this state, but in the fall of 1864 were sent on to Washington and remained on duty in the defenses of that city. They were mustered out the 18th of Sept., 1865.

The 13th Co. Unattached Heavy Artillery, Co. L of the 3rd Reg. were on detached duty as engineers. This company was mostly recruited from the Springfield Armory and received great praise.

THE FOLLOWING LIST IS THAT OF NAMES OF MEN ABOUT WHOM THE COMMITTEE HAVE NOT SATISFACTORY EVIDENCE TO INCLUDE IN THE FOREGOING LISTS.

Italics indicate that such a name is not found on the rolls at the Adjutant General's Department.

*Given in town reports 1861-5, as a Danvers man.

‡Occurs in former report to the town.

*Baker. ———, "credited to Salem."

*Bradbury, Josiah. "credited to Essex."

‡Bradbury, William, said to have been a member of 23d regiment, M. V. M.

Brennan, J. W., corp. Co. D, 59th Inf. Gave his residence as Danvers on hospital roll. There was a John W. living in Danvers prior to the war. John W. Brennan, corp. Co. H, 59th, appears on the rolls, as of Harvard.

*Britton, Lewis. "credited to Sharon." There was a Lewis Britton in town, 1865, who married Maria Wilson.

Butler, Pierce, m. 5 July, 1861, Co. A, 1st H. A.; reenl. 25 Nov., 1865; dis. 22 Jan., 1865, died at Ipswich, 22 Jan., 1865. Æt. 20 at enl. He seems to be an Ipswich man, and was credited to Ipswich.

Byrnes, James, m. 11 Dec., 1863, Co. B, 17th Inf.; lost at sea, off Sandy Hook, on way to rejoin regiment, 7 June, 1865. Æt. 37 at enl. and married. He was a resident of West Peabody, and was credited to South Danvers.

Clarke, John H., cannot be identified.

*Coleman, Benjamin F., m. 26 May, 1862, Salem Cadets; dis. 11 Oct., 1862. Credited to Salem. Æt. 27 at enl.

Collemy, Charles, buried in Danvers; his grave is yearly decorated by G. A. R. Post 90.

*Collemy, Levi F., "credited to Haverhill." A Levi T., was a resident of Danvers in 1863. His wife was Mary Hutchinson.

Fischer, Charles G., gave while in hospital his residence (or that of relatives?) as North Danvers. He was sergt.-major, Co. G, 35th Inf.; but no such person appears on the roll. There was a Charles Gilman Fisher, born in Danvers, 29 Apr., 1849, son of Charles R. and Sophronia Fisher.

‡Forrest, William S., m. 30 Sept., 1862, Co. G, 31st Inf.; dis. 27 July, 1863. Credited to Oxford; m. 22 Dec., 1863, Co. K, 2d H. A., corp.; dis. 3 Sept., 1865. Credited to Oxford. Æt. 42 at enl. He appears to be an Oxford man.

‡Freeze, George A., m. 22 Dec., 1863, Co. K, 2d H. A.; dis. 3 Sept., 1865, ex. term. Of East Saugus, credited to Saugus. Æt. 31 at enl.

- Hayward*, George, ret. 28 at enl. Not returned by enrolling officer.
- Henderson*, Edward, "conscript." Ret. 29 at enl. He was dropped at Long Island.
- Hennessey*, Thomas, "New York Regiment."
- Howell*, James. He was a Danvers man, and is thought to be a member of a G. A. R. post in Boston.
- ‡James, William H., m. 12 Oct., 1861; Co. F, 23d Inf.; dis. 12 Nov., 1863, disability; m. 19 Oct., 1864, V. R. C. Credited to Salem. Probably of Topsfield.
- Knights*, Charles A., not returned by enrolling officer.
- McLaud* (McLeod, Alfred), "credited to Salem." Now of Haverhill.
- Morrison*, ———, "credited to Salem."
- Morrison*, George M., born in Safford, Me.; enl. 14 Feb., 1865, in Co. A, 1st Batt'y Art.; dis. 20 Oct., 1865; d. 31 July, 1887. Buried in Danvers.
- Nelson*, Henry, "Co. I, 19th Inf." Not found on rolls of that organization.
- Pearsons*, Moses T., "credited to Newbury."
- Peterson*, John, "reenl. 1st H. A." There was a John J. Peterson in the 1st Batt'y H. A. Credited to Duxbury.
- Splane*, Edward, "40th N. Y. Vol."
- ‡Trask Ira F., m. 5 July, 1861, Co. I, 1st H. A.; reenl. 29 Jan., 1864; dis. 16 Aug., 1865, ex. term. Credited to Wenham. He does not seem to have been a Danvers resident.
- ‡Wentworth, Enoch J. He obtained a bounty, but appears never to have been mustered. Is said to reside in Ipswich.

THE MONUMENT ERECTED TO THE SOLDIERS AND SAILORS IN THE LAST WAR.

In 1868 steps were taken to arrange for the erection of a monument with tablets inscribed with the names of the soldiers and sailors of Danvers who fell in the war. After various votes in the two annual town meetings following, it was finally decided in July, 1870, to erect the monument in front of the town house.

The cost was $6,298.20 of which sum Hon. Edwin Mudge contributed the larger part of his two years salary as representative to the General Court.

The monument was dedicated 30 Nov., 1870. It is of Hallowell granite, thirty-three and one quarter feet high. The following names are inscribed upon the tablets :

Major, Wallace A. Putnam.

Lieutenant, James Hill.

Hector A. Aiken	Daniel H. Gould	Alfred Porter
Henry F. Allen	Samuel S. Grout	Robert W. Putnam
James Battye	Ambrose Hinds	Isaac N. Roberts
Edwin Beckford	Levi Howard	S. P. Richardson

LEXINGTON MONUMENT,
PEABODY.

WAR OF 1864 MONUMENT,
DANVERS.

APPENDIX.

EARLY MILITARY ORGANIZATIONS AND SERVICE.

Danvers as a separate district dates only from 1752, but the territory now embraced within its limits and much of the towns of Peabody and Beverly, was early designated as Salem Farms and later as Salem Village, although that part of the present town wherein the first substantial improvements were begun by John Endicott in 1633, was not a portion of Salem Village, but of the old parish in Salem.

The earliest settlers in Danvers may be presumed to be Richard Waterman, a hunter, and a certain "Mr." Freeman, both of whose estates were soon afterward incorporated in the estate of John Putnam. Waterman came over in 1629 as a hunter; of Freeman very little is known except that he was a very early settler near Beaver Brook. Waterman's land was near Davenport's Hill.

John Endicott was the first to improve a farm in the present limits of the town. He set to work as early as 1633 to clear the "Orchard Farm," granted him in the preceding year. From that time on the grants in the "Farms" are of frequent occurrence and were immediately occupied by the more energetic. Thus John Putnam, first on the Plains, and then at Beaver Brook, and Daniel Rea and others, Davenport, Gardner and Reed, noted military leaders of their day, found Danvers a promising field for farming operations and lived here a great part of their time.

So rapid was the settlement and opening up of roads and the country that soon demands were made by the settlers for a separate parish, which question was continually agitated till settled favorably in 1672.

In the early Indian wars, men were drawn from this district to an extent which shows a considerable population of a military spirit. The General Court ordered, in April, 1631, that every captain should train his company on Saturday in every week, and various precautions were taken that the colonists should not expose themselves to the danger of attack by Indians. In November, 1632, monthly training days were appointed, but, five years later, eight trainings a year were considered sufficient.

In 1636, 13 Dec., the military companies were divided into three regiments of which the third was composed of the men of Saugus (now Lynn), Salem, Ipswich and Newbury, of which John Endicott was appointed colonel and John Winthrop, jr., lieutenant colonel. It was also ordered that in the future each regiment should each year elect a colonel and lieutenant colonel, and that the several towns should each choose for the positions of captains and lieutenants of the several companies, some principal man, all whom were subject to confirmation by the council.

Capt. (William) Trask was appointed muster master for the East or Essex Regiment. It was during the year 1634, at one of the trainings, that the cross in the colors was cut out. In this were concerned Davenport and Endicott. The colors at that period consisted of a green field with a white union having upon it the red cross of England. On the 25 Aug., 1636, ninety volunteers agreed to go against the Pequots. They were divided into four companies, one of which was commanded by Ensign Davenport and the whole commanded by Endicott. The results of this expedition were the destruction of much corn and property of the Indians and the loss of two soldiers, killed. They returned about the 14th of September.

The following year the military company at Salem was officered by Capt. William Trask, Lieut. Richard Davenport, and Ensign Thomas Beede; and Trask and Davenport, with Salem's quota of 28 men for the Pequot war, joined the Massachusetts force under Stoughton. The expedition returned Aug. 26, having lost none killed, although having had a severe encounter with the Indians in a swamp at Fairfield. After that there were no affairs of consequence to call for military action till the breaking out of the terrible war known as King Philip's War, although on the 20th Aug., 1664,* 200 volunteers were called for to serve against the Dutch, and again 10 Dec., 1673, a levy from each county was made, and ordered to hold themselves in readiness to serve against the Dutch. The fort at Salem was put in a state of repair. The quota of Essex was 100 foot soldiers and thirty troopers, all of which were to be commanded by Daniel Dennison. Geo. Corwin had 8 Oct., 1662, been appointed captain, Thomas Putnam (of the Village) lieutenant, and Walter Price, cornet of the Troop of horse in "Lynn, Salem, etc."

Upon the petition of "Sergeant Major General" Endicott, Wm. Hathorne, Capt. Robert Bridges, and other gentlemen of Lynn and Salem, a military company, to be called the "Military company of Salem and Lynn" was chartered 14 May, 1645. This company on parade made a dashing appearance. In time interest flagged, but in Oct., 1678, a successful attempt was made to reorganize and William Brown, jr., was appointed captain, John Putnam, formerly corporal in the training band, was chosen lieutenant.

Upham says that among the signers to this petition were Anthony Needham, Peter and Ezekiel Cheever, Thomas Flint, Thomas and Benjamin Wilkins, Thomas and Jacob Fuller, John Proctor, William Osborne, Thomas Putnam, jr., and others of the Farms. Each of the officers of this troop were wealthy and took much pride in the display of fine uniforms and trappings.

Again Upham in his admirable history of Salem Village says, "Another marked feature of this people was their military spirit.

*This year Walter Price was captain, George Gardner, lieutenant, and Zerubabel Endicott, ensign of the Salem company.

Authority was early obtained from the General Court to form a foot company. All adults of every description belonged to it, including men much beyond middle life—its officers were the fathers of the Village. Every title of rank, from corporal to captain, once obtained, was worn ever after through life." Jonathan Walcott, a deacon of the church was its captain. Nathaniel Ingersoll also a deacon, was successively corporal, sergeant, lieutenant. Thomas Putnam, clerk of the parish, was sergeant. "It was almost as much thought of as the church, officered by the same persons, and composed of the same men. It was a common practice, at the close of a parade, before 'breaking line,' for the captain to give notices of prayer, church or parish meetings."

KING PHILIP'S WAR.

At the opening of the war the colonial militia was quite efficiently organized. The Essex regiment consisted of thirteen foot companies, and one cavalry company. There were 73 organized companies in the Massachusetts colony, besides the "Three County Troop" made up of men of Suffolk, Middlesex and Essex. The highest military office was Major-general and held by Daniel Dennison of Ipswich. The highest regimental officer was a Sergeant-major.

The local companies were not sent on active service out of their towns, but men were impressed from them and placed under officers especially selected by the Council. Each company of foot had a captain, lieutenant, ensign, sergeants, clerk, corporals, and drummer. Cavalry companies had a cornet in place of ensign and a trumpeter, and quartermaster, no drummer. Foot companies were composed of 70 men, horse 50. On special service it was more.

Upon the commencement of the war, the old matchlock musket was in use but was exchanged for the flint-lock as being more serviceable. There were no bayonets, but each company had a certain number of "pikemen." In the campaign culminating in Feb., 1675-76, and in which the memorable assault was made on the Narragansett fort, 19 Dec., 1675, the following men from Capt. George Curwen's company of troopers served in Capt. Prentice's troop of horse, Stephen Haskel, Thomas Putnam, jr.,* Charles Blinkoe, John Richards, Thomas Howard, Nathaniel Ballard, jr., William Dodge, jr., John Edmonds, William Merriam, Thomas Flint, Sr.†, also Joseph Hutchinson and Henry Kenney.‡

*Thomas Putnam, son of Thomas, and grandson of John. He is the sergeant Thomas, whose daughter Ann was one of the unfortunates concerned in the Witchcraft delusion a few years later. He married Ann Carr. He was b. 12 Mar., 1652-3 and died 24 May, 1699.

†Thomas Flint, son of Thomas and Ann Flint. It is said he was wounded at the fight in the swamp against the Narragansetts. He married Hannah Moulton who died 30 Mar., 1673, and again 15 Sept., 1674, Mary Dounton. He died 24 May, 1721, æt. about 76.

‡Henry Kenney served under Capt. John Whipple of Ipswich in June, 1676, near Springfield.

The names of Kenny, Hutchinson, Howard, Putnam and Flint are those of Danvers men.

The following names of men who served under Capt. Nicholas Page, in his company of troopers are familiar to Danvers ears. Joseph Proctor, Nathaniel Ingersoll, William Osborn, Joseph Needham, Francis Coard (Caïd?), Benjamin Wilkins, John Whipple* (lieut.), Daniel Wilkins. As no places of residence are given we do not here attempt to identify the families to whom they belonged. This troop accompanied Major Thomas Savage in an expedition against Mt. Hope, June to Sept., 1675.

In Mar., 1675-6, a levy of 48 men from Essex Co., and 40 from Norfolk Co., was made to reenforce Major Willard at Groton. These men were placed under command of Capt. Joseph Cook of Cambridge. They arrived at Groton the 14th of March, shortly after the destruction of that place.

BLOODY BROOK.

When Capt. Thomas Lothrop and 71 of his men, almost entirely from the county of Essex, were slain by the Indians at Bloody Brook, 18 Sept., 1675, the consternation throughout the county was general.

Lothrop was among the rate payers of the parish at Salem Village when it was set off from Salem, but his residence was in the present town of Beverly.

Upham says "No man was ever more identified with the history of Salem Farms." He was constantly engaged in military service either against the Indians or the French. The following names of inhabitants of the Farms are found among the list of slain at Bloody Brook.

Thomas Bayley,
Edward Trask,
Josiah Dodge,
Peter Woodbury,
Joseph Balch,

Thomas Buckley,
Joseph King,
Robert Wilson,
James Tufts,
Thomas Smith,† sergt.

Among the names of men under the command of Major Samuel Appleton in the Narragansett campaign occur those of Israel Henick (Herriek), Thomas Abbey, John Rayment (Raymond), Robert Leach, Samuel Hebbart, Stephen Butler, Samuel Verry, which are all to be found on our early records. As usual in these rolls no places of residence are given, but the company was largely drawn from Essex County.

Among the noted commanders in King Philip's War, was Capt. Joseph Gardner of Salem. He was the son of Thomas and Margaret Gardner and was a man of much importance in the early history of Salem. The company he commanded was composed of men, residents of Salem and vicinity. Among the men of his company who may be claimed for Danvers are William Hathorne, his lieutenant and successor in command,

*Commanded a company of troopers in the next campaign in the spring of 1676.

†Born in the Village, but at this time a resident of Newbury.

Joseph Houlton, jr.,

Thomas Flint,

Thomas Kenny,

John Stacey,

Eleazer Lyndsey,

Thomas Bell,

Charles Knight,

Isaac Reed.

Capt. Gardner was killed during the battle at the fort and those in italics wounded. The story of the attack and capture of the fort of the Narragansetts and the effectual blow it dealt to Philip has been told again and again. There is no room to repeat it fully here.

The force, commanded in part by two men identified with our town, Gardner and Davenport, and composed largely of men from our county, in the heart of winter, 19 Dec., penetrated the fastnesses of the Indians and in the face of a fearful fire attacked the fort of the enemy. The Massachusetts troops were in the van. Says one historian "in all military history there is not a more daring exploit. Never, on any field, has more heroic prowess been displayed."

Davenport, mentioned above, was the son of Capt. Richard and Elizabeth (Hathorne) Davenport and was born in Salem Village. He was dressed when he fell in a full buff suit. He and Gardner "were both the idols of their men." For some time Davenport had been living in New York. He married Elizabeth, daughter of James Thatcher.

Capt. Richard Davenport has been already mentioned in connection with a command in the Pequot war, and the cutting out of the cross in the flag. He was afterward commandant of the Castle, Boston Harbor.

Besides the men already mentioned as having served in this campaign, Upham gives the following, taken from records in the State archives, who were present at the Narragansett fight, as from Salem Village and its farming neighborhood, viz.

John Dodge,

William Dodge,

Joseph Herrick,

Thomas Abbey,

William Raymond,

Thomas Raymond,

Thomas Putnam, jr.,

Robert Leach,

Peter Prescott.

Grants of land known as the "Narragansett Townships" were made to the survivors and heirs of the soldiers in the Narragansett expedition. To these grants are due in part the very large migration of the younger sons of Danvers families during the early years of the 18th century.

While the campaign against the Narragansetts was taking place, the garrisons on the Connecticut River were placed under the command of Capt. Jonathan Poole of Reading. Among the men in his command were Joshua and Elisha Fuller, George Eborne, Thomas Bishop, Edward Bishop, William Rayment, Zechariah Herrick, Benjamin Collins, Joseph Jacobs, Caleb Ray, William Stacey, John Duntou.

These men served under Poole at various dates from Oct., 1675 to Oct., 1676. No places of residence are given on the rolls and that the above are names common on our records, and that a large number of Reading men appear on the rolls, is the principal excuse for giving them in this connection.

Jonathan Kettle and Joseph Needham served under Capt. Joseph Sill in June, 1676. John Tarball, and Caleb Ray, in Aug., 1676.

Among the recruits who joined the army after the Narragansett fight was a company from Essex county under Capt. Nicholas Manning of Ipswich. Anthony Needham was lieutenant. On the company rolls occur the names of Richard Scott, John Ballard, Stephen Herrick (Herrick), Thomas Raymond, Richard George, Richard Norman, Thomas Fuller, William Rayment, Joseph Collins, some of whom were undoubtedly from Salem Farms.

A careful examination of the rolls relating to King Philip's War will reveal many names which have their counterparts on our early records, but the data to locate them, as has already been noticed, is extremely hard to obtain. There is an extremely valuable book, prepared by the Rev. George M. Bodge which tells the story of the whole war and gives lists of the soldiers; it is entitled "Soldiers in King Philip's war."

During the years immediately preceding the Witchcraft delusion, there were depredations by the Indians on the frontier.

FRENCH WARS.

The Colonies of Great Britain and France for the whole period of their existence under separate governments, were engaged in continual wars, some of much more consequence than others. The Indian wars during the 18th century were instigated nearly always by the French.

The first of the series of the French and Indian Wars opened in 1689: the last closed in 1763. King William's War, so called, 1689-1697 is memorable for the attack upon Haverhill. Sir William Phips led an expedition from Boston, which captured Port Royal in 1690.

In 1689 (1 April), John Bishop, and Nicholas Reed*, a servant of Edward Putnam, and in 1690, Godfrey Sheldon† were killed by Indians, in the outskirts of Salem. "Thomas Alsob, Edward Crocker, George Ingersoll killed at Casco Bay," on the 4, 5, 6 July respectively.‡ In June, 1693, William Tarbell, a soldier, was killed at the Eastward. In Aug. and October, 1689, Billerica and *21 Sept. he was eighteen years of age.

†3 July he was twenty-four years of age.

‡Church Records.

Newbury were attacked, and in 1698 a destructive assault was made on Haverhill.

The next of the series is known as Queen Anne's War, 1702-13. The French and Indians destroyed Deerfield and the Colonies recaptured Port Royal, which was re-named Annapolis. An expedition against Quebec ended in disaster. Eight men from the Village were impressed to help man the "Flying Horse," of Salem.

The rolls of this war contain Danvers names, but as Danvers was then a part of Salem it is impossible to glean with accuracy. Most of the men recorded below, it will be seen, are enrolled after 1710.

On the 3rd July, 1706, a garrison was stormed at Dunstable, and Holyoke, son of Edward Putnam of Salem Village, was killed, as well as three other soldiers, and on the 29th Aug., 1708 the French and Indians destroyed Haverhill. Upon this alarm the military companies of Salem, including a company of foot and troop of horse from the village hastened to the rescue of the inhabitants and pursued the flying Indians for some distance. Rev. Joseph Green, pastor of the church, seized his gun and joined with his parishioners in the pursuit.

King George's war, 1744-48 is chiefly remarkable for the capture of the famous French stronghold of Louisburg, by Sir William Pepperrell, whose name was well known in Danvers. The capture of this fort was by a land force wholly of New Englanders, but unfortunately the rolls are not complete and such men as went from Danvers are credited to Salem.

The last war of the series usually called the French and Indian War, 1754-63, is the one chiefly with which these records have to do as the armies raised were the largest so far attempted and the drafting from militia regiments was accurately recorded. Thus we have a source of information extremely valuable, making it possible to give definite information concerning the men of Danvers who served in the French Wars. The individual records will be found, alphabetically arranged under the head of "French War Soldiers."

The following summary of events by years will enable the reader to see about what service the various soldiers were engaged in.

The expedition against the French forts in Nova Scotia was successful. One of the results was the eviction and transportation of 7,000 Acadians from their home to the colonies. About 1,000 of these unfortunate people were settled in Massachusetts.

Two thousand Provincials under John Winslow and Gen. Monekton of the British army took part in this expedition. The same year 3,000 men mostly from Massachusetts and Connecticut and some from New Hampshire under the command of Sir William Johnson were engaged about Lake George. The battle of the 8th of September near Fort Edward resulted in the rout of the French and the capture their commander, Dieskau. Col. Ephraim Webb of Massachusetts was killed.

Further west Gov. Shirley, with a force composed of his own and Sir William Pepperell's regiment, unsuccessfully attempted to capture Fort Niagara on Lake Ontario. The troops returned and went into winter quarters at Albany.

1756.

Gen. Winslow led an expedition against the French at Lake George. This expedition accomplished nothing. Lord Loudoun succeeded Shirley in command in July, 1755.

1757.

Loudoun got as far as Halifax in an expedition against Louisburg. Montcalm, the French leader, captured Fort William Henry, the 9th of Aug., commanded by Col. Monroe. Two thousand men surrendered. Many Danvers men, it will be seen, were there. A horrid massacre was attempted by the Indian allies of the French on account of which the paroled prisoners (18 months), felt that they were free to enter the service again in 1758, and did so in great numbers.

Upon the intelligence of this disaster, 20,000 militia rushed to arms in New England and were placed under the command of Sir William Pepperell who went to Springfield to protect the Western frontier.

This alarm was nearly as generously responded to by the men of Essex Co. as that of the 19th of April, 1775, but no fighting occurred and the term of service was very short.

Seven thousand men were drafted from the "train bands" in Massachusetts, being every fourth free holder training. Gen. Abercrombie, on the 8th of July, attacked Ticonderoga by assault and lost 2,000 men, of whom 500 were from New England. After this assault he retired to Lake George.

Col. Bradstreet of Mass. and 3,000 men (about 1,000 from Massachusetts) captured Ft. Frontenac on Lake Ontario. Few were killed by the enemy, but a number died of disease. Sir Jeffrey Amherst besieged Louisburg with 3,000 regulars and some provincials. Col. Gridley was there. It was captured the 26th of July.

1759.

Amherst took Crown Point, Ticonderoga, etc., but failed to effect a junction with Wolfe before Quebec. Wolfe had captured Quebec alone the 13th of Sept., 1759.

1760.

10th of Sept., Montreal surrendered. Treaty of Peace, Feb., 1763.

A few words concerning some of the commanders and the companies from Danvers will not be amiss.

During the last French War, companies were raised for the various expeditions against Crown Point, Nova Scotia, or for further service. The men enlisted for those purposes, except that in the last years Amherst enlisted his men "for the complete reduction of Canada." There were several popular leaders in and near Danvers. Capt. William Flint of Reading had a number of men from the outskirts of Danvers in his company. His lieutenant was Eleazer Lyndsey, whose father died in Danvers and owned farms in both Lynn and Salem Village. James Pool was ensign. They were attached to Col. Ichabod Plaisted's regiment, and served from May to December, 1756, at Crown Point.

That same year Capt. Andrew Fuller of Middleton enlisted in his company no less than sixteen Danvers men. They were stationed at Ft. William Henry in October. Joseph Swain, a son of Capt. John of Reading, and the minister at Wenham, was their chaplain. John Calef of Ipswich, afterward famous as a Loyalist in the Revolution, was their surgeon. Both the lieutenant, James Jennison, and the ensign, James Collins, were Danvers young men.

Again in 1758 we find Fuller's company with a large representation from Danvers with Israel Hutchinson as lieutenant, and Richard Skidmore, "old skid" the famous drummer, on the rolls.

Israel Herrick of Boxford in his company of Rangers always had several Danvers men to rely upon. He was engaged on the Eastern frontier, that is in and about Maine.

John Tapley of Salem was captain of a company which was at the surrender of Fort William Henry. Twelve Danvers men were in his company at that time.

In 1759, Israel Davis of Danvers commanded a company which went to Louisburg and remained in the service till 1761, and a large number of his townsmen were in this company.

Many Danvers men, impressed for the war, were however placed in companies raised in other parts of the county. The average age of the men serving from Danvers could not have been much above 21 years, so that it is not to be wondered at the spirit prevailing in 1775, and the knowledge acquired by these men in the French War was used to great advantage in the Revolution.

b. 1734.

After the conquest of Canada, the militia of Essex County was organized into seven regiments, the Danvers companies being placed in the 1st regiment with those of Salem, Lynn, Beverly and Middleton. In Jan., 1766, Danvers had two militia companies, with officers as follows :

1st company.

Elisha Flint, captain,
 Archelaus Putnam, lieutenant,
 Oliver Putnam, ensign.

2d company.

John Epes, captain,
 John Proctor, jr., lieutenant,
 Francis Epes, ensign.

The Troop of Horse connected with the regiment was officered as follows:

Daniel Mackey, captain,
 John Wilkins, lieutenant,
 Cornelius Tarbell, cornet,
 John Putnam, quartermaster.

In April, 1766, the second company was officered as follows:

Thomas Porter, captain,
 Joseph Southwick, lieutenant,
 Benj. Procter, ensign.

Unless as I suspect this was a new company and the one formerly known as the 2d became the 3d.

In 1771, the 1st Essex Regiment was commanded by Col. William Brown and the three Danvers companies were officered as follows:

1st company.

Caleb Low, captain,
 Ezekiel Marsh, jr., lieutenant,
 John Dodge, ensign.

2d company,

Not commissioned.

3d company.†

Jeremiah Page, captain,
 Enoch Putnam, lieutenant,
 Elias Endicott, ensign.

William Proctor was captain of the Troop of Horse.

At the outbreak of the Revolution, Samuel Flint commanded one company of the militia; Samuel Epes the other company of militia; the remaining six companies which responded to the Lexington Alarm were "Alarm Companies" or "Lists" and "Minute Men." Upon the alarm that Col. Leslie was marching to Salem, 26 Feb., 1775, to destroy stores, the minute men of Danvers quickly responded, and had not the British retraced their steps after crossing the North River, the first battle of the Revolution would have been fought at Gardner's Hill. The rolls of these eight companies numbering in all 303 men* are given below.

†For interesting facts regarding this organization see Revolutionary Soldiers under Jeremiah Page.

*The names of the Lexington Alarm Men, who saw no further service are not repeated in the lists of Revolutionary soldiers given on pages 111 et seq.

MILITIA COMPANIES OF DANVERS DURING THE REVOLUTION.

In the possession of Mrs. Elizabeth Putnam, widow of Captain Andrew Putnam of Danvers, are a number of ancient papers among them several lists of militia organizations in Danvers during the Revolution, which we print below. Mrs. Putnam is a granddaughter of the John Preston† to whom these papers belonged.

†Since printing the list of French War soldiers, the fact that Levi Preston of Danvers was a soldier has been discovered. His record is given below.

PHILLIP PRESTON served in the second Louisburg campaign as is shown by the following extract from his brother John Preston's diary. "June 10, 1745, my brother listed for Cape Britton. Sailed from Boston, June 26, and arrived at Louisburg harbor July 6, and wrote me a letter dated July 7. I received it July 27. Aug. 13, he was brought home sick."

Phillip Preston the subject of the above note died Apr. 14, 1748.

He was the son of John and Elizabeth (Voden) Preston, and was born Mar. 6, 1719. He married Ruth, dau. of Thomas and Elizabeth (Whipple) Putnam.

Those names starred have been scratched in the original.

Amos Tapley, 2d Lt., under date of May 9th and Oct. 17th, 1777, gives to John Preston receipts for money toward hiring men for three years service in the continental army.

PRIVATEERS FROM DANVERS.

During the Revolution, the Jupiter, Harlequin, Gen. Greene, and many other privateers and vessels of war, besides merchant vessels were built at Danversport. Four twenty gun ships were built in the Revolution. The anchors of the celebrated frigate Essex were made at the Iron Works. (Hanson, p. 111). It will be also recalled that the stern post of the Essex was a part of the tree which stood in the field opposite the Collins house to which the British soldiers who were camped there in 1774, were tied for flogging, when occasion arose.

The name of but one of the privateersmen has been obtained, as follows :

Hines, Wm., entered on board the sloop (General) Gates, (a privateer) 10 July, 1778, at Salem, bound on a cruise to the eastward toward the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Was Master's Mate on said Sloop, which was captured in July, 1778, by British frigate Triton, carried to Quebec, afterwards taken to England, lodged in Forton Prison near Portsmouth, England, in which he died on the 14th day of June, 1781, after a 3 years captivity.

GEN. GAGE IN DANVERS.

Gen. Gage then the Royal governor of Massachusetts took up his residence in the Collins house, 5 June, 1774. On the 21st July, two companies of the 64th Reg. Royal troops arrived and encamped opposite the mansion. The British returned to Boston, 5 Sept., 1774. During this period the Page mansion was occupied in part, as an office and headquarters.

In a field on the south side of Sylvan Street, in the rear of the residence of I. P. Andrews, Esq., are the unmarked graves of several British soldiers.

Hanson gives a list of names of men from Danvers engaged in the Revolution. As the list printed above is not and cannot, from the imperfect nature of the existing records, be absolutely correct, it is thought advisable to add such names given by Hanson which will not be found elsewhere in this report. As the list was compiled in the forties, doubtless many of the names were obtained from elderly people then living.

There are many evident errors in this list of Hanson's both in Christian and surnames. Perhaps some of these were privateersmen, of whom no other list exists.

MILITIA OFFICERS.

During the twenty years following the Revolution many of the veterans of that war obtained commissions in the militia and thus a list of the officers commissioned from Danvers is of especial interest.

Gideon Foster was commissioned Colonel of the 6th regiment, 13 Sept., 1792, Brigadier General, 30 April, 1796 and Major General, 17 June, 1801, was discharged 1806.

Ebenezer Goodale commissioned Captain, 20 Dec., 1796, Major, 1 Dec. 1800, Lieutenant-Colonel, 12 April 1804, Major General, 7 Feb., 1812, placed under arrest 8 Aug., 1812, and cashiered 13 Oct., 1812.

Jethro Putnam commissioned Major, 13 Sept., 1792, Lieutenant-Colonel, 4 April 1796, Colonel commanding, 20 Oct., 1796.

Jacob B. Winchester commissioned Adjutant, 12 Sept., 1793.

Ebenezer Shillaber commissioned Quartermaster, 17 Sept., 1793.

The following were commissioned Lieutenants at the dates set after their names :

Amos King, 10 Oct., 1791.

Andrew Nichols, 10 Oct., 1792, promoted Captain 5 April, 1796, promoted Major 20 Oct., 1796.

Daniel Reed, jr., 3 June, 1794.

Jonathan Walcutt, 25 Sept., 1794.

Jonathan Procter, jr., 3 May, 1796.

Daniel King, 31 Aug., 1796, promoted Captain 9 Dec., 1796.

Richard Osborne, 9 Dec., 1796.

Nathaniel Felton, 19 Dec., 1796, promoted Captain 26 Jan., 1801.

Samuel Flint, 2 May, 1797, promoted captain 26 Jan., 1801.

John Gardner, 26 Jan., 1801.

William Cross, 26 Jan., 1801, promoted Captain 22 May, 1804.

Thomas Emerson, 20 May, 1802, promoted Captain 3 April, 1804.

John Fowler, 19 July, 1802.

Andrew Monroe, 3 Feb. 1803, promoted Captain 14 March, 1803, promoted Major, 24 May, 1804.

Ebenezer Moulton, jr., 14 March, 1804.

Jonathan Porter, 3d, 26 Sept., 1803, promoted Captain.

John Sanders, 3 April, 1804.

Elijah Flint, 22 May, 1804.

James Proctor, 7 May, 1805.

Wm. Goodale, 27 June, 1806.

The following were commissioned captains on the date set against their names :

James Foster, 10 Oct., 1791.

Benjamin Putnam, 18 Oct., 1792.

Zechariah King, 15 April, 1792, promoted Major 18 April, 1796.

Levi Preston, 6 May, 1794.

Johnson Procter, 25 April, 1796 (he was ensign, 10 Oct., 1791).

Sylvester Osborne, 3 May, 1796, promoted Brigade Major.

Daniel Usher, 22 Nov., 1796.

Fitch Pool, 12 April, 1802.

David Putnam, 28 July, 1803, promoted Major.

John Felton, 2 July, 1804, promoted Major.

Daniel Preston, 31 Aug., 1813 ; promoted Lt. Col. 19 Sept.,
1813 ; promoted Colonel 5 Aug., 1818.

From a return of the sixth regiment, first brigade, second division, 1797, it appears that Jethro Putnam was colonel and Johnson Procter, Daniel Usher, Daniel Ring, Solomon Wilkins, Ebenezer Goodale were captains. Adjutant, Daniel Osborn.

SHAY'S REBELLION.

There were fourteen men from Danvers in Capt. John Frances' company, in Col. Wade's Essex County regiment, which marched to help subdue the so-called Shay's rebellion. The names of four of these are as follows, Daniel Needham, lieutenant ; Josiah White, sergeant ; Moses Thomas, corporal ; Daniel Bell, drummer.

The book of the company in the sixth regiment, first brigade, second division commanded by Captain Johnson Proctor (appointed 25 April, 1796) until 16 Jan., 1801, preserved among the records in the Adj. Gen. Dept. is evidently the record of King's company subsequent to his retirement from command. It furnishes the names of a few of the enlisted men, of which the following occur from 1796 to 1817: Jona. Procter, Nathaniel Felton, John Gardner, Henry Williams, Aaron Marsh, Andrew Monroe, Ebenezer Moulton, John Felton, James Proctor, Thomas H. Marsh, Daniel Brown, Amos King, 3d, Samuel Newel, Henry Doutey, Solomon Arbin, Jonathan Small, John Nurse, John Hook, Thorne-dike Procter.

Hoyt, Moody Morse, Joseph Newhall, Nathan Parker, Jeremiah Sheldon.

There were usually about fifty men enlisted in the company.

Fines for neglect of equipment and absence from parade are frequent matters of record.

THE DANVERS LIGHT INFANTRY, M. M.

ORGANIZED 1818.

DISBANDED ABOUT 1850.

The first officers of the company were Robert S. Daniels, captain, Abner Sanger, lieutenant, Allen Gould, ensign.

The uniform consisted of a blue swallow tail coat with gold buttons, a white or buff waistcoat and pantaloons, high, stiff hat, larger at the top than base, with gold trimming and a tall plume.

The company was disbanded about 1850, but on the 10 Sept., 1862, over 100 of the past members of the organization escorted a company of volunteers departing for the scene of war. This was the last appearance of the Danvers Light Infantry under the old regime.

DANVERS LIGHT INFANTRY, M. V. M.—ORGANIZED 1891.

A sketch of the Danvers Light Infantry, Co. K, Eighth Regiment, M. V. M., would be incomplete without a word of reference to its immediate predecessor.

The Mechanic Light Infantry of Salem, also known as Co. K, Eighth Regiment, was disbanded by order of the commander-in-chief, issued by Adj't Gen'l Dalton, Nov. 30, 1889, after a continuous existence of 82 years, having been organized Feb. 2, 1807. The officers at the time of disbandment were William H. Dunney, captain; Horace Durgin, first lieutenant; William H. Tweed, second lieutenant. It bore upon its rolls at the time 5 enlisted men, the full quota.

The place thus made vacant in the Eighth Regiment was sought after by many companies. A petition from Salem was denied in 1889. Finally, in 1891, it was given out that a petition from Danvers would be favorably received by the governor (William E. Russell) and the paper was accordingly drawn up by Lieut. Col. (subsequently Colonel) Charles L. Dodge, of the Eighth, and circulated among the young men of the town by F. Pierce Tebbetts. John T. Carroll was the first signer.

March 9, 1891, Col. J. Albert Mills of the Eighth came to Danvers and met the signers of the petition at the skating rink on Maple street, which building was subsequently remodeled for an armory for the company.

A few days later, the colonel's impressions having been favorably reported to the governor, the petition was sent in, and Adj't Gen. Samuel Dalton was directed by the commander-in-chief to inspect the would-be soldiers, which he did on the evening of March 17, at Town hall, assisted by Col. George A. Keeler.

Upon receipt of the general's report, the governor caused an order to be issued, directing the muster-in of the company at Danvers, on March 25. On that date the men gathered at the Old Berry Tavern, where the old time militia-men were wont to assemble years ago, and Col. Mills then and there mustered into the state service 51 men. Assisting Col. Mills were Lieut. Col. Dodge, Maj. Pew, Surgeon Hersey, Assistant Surgeon Galloupe and Paymaster Warner. Lieut. G. N. B. Cousens of I Company, Lynn, who was detailed to act as instructor to the new company, was also present.

On the same evening a special town meeting had been called, and upon a presentation of the matter by Frank C. Damon and Col. Mills, $100 was appropriated to heat and light the armory of the company for a year. Later the selectmen leased the skating rink for a period of five years, and the company, assisted by the honorary members, and skating rink association, remodeled and furnished the structure at an expense of some $3,000.

The first drills were held at Town hall, under the instruction of Lieut. Cousens. Here, April 7, the members of the company assembled for the election of officers. Lieut. Col. Dodge presided, and the result was as follows: Frank C. Damon was elected captain, receiving all of the 45 votes cast. F. Pierce Tebbets was elected first lieutenant, receiving on the second ballot 42 of the 49 votes cast. Fred U. French was elected second lieutenant on the second ballot, receiving 25 votes, while A. Preston Chase received 24.

On the 22d of April the above named officers appeared before the military examining board, of which Brig. Gen. Peach was president, at the State House, Boston, and were commissioned and assigned to duty.

The new armory was opened in due form, Aug. 26, 1891, and drills have since been held there weekly.

In May, 1892, Lieut. Tebbets resigned, and Lieut. French was promoted to first lieutenant, while Sergt. A. Preston Chase was elected second lieutenant.

There have been many changes in the membership of the command in the three years that it has been in existence, but most of the officers remain the same. The original members of the company are given herewith, those marked with an asterisk being mustered in at various times between March 25 and the first encampment in July, 1891.

PROCEEDINGS DANVERS HISTORICAL SOCIETY, 20 APRIL, 1891.

1775 - APRIL 19, - 1891.

The Danvers Historical Society celebrated the 116th anniversary of the Battle of Lexington, Apr. 20, 1891, by exercises afternoon and evening at the Town Hall, with an intermission of a couple of hours, pleasantly spent at the supper table, which was spread in Gothic Hall, and at which nearly two hundred covers were laid.

The Town Hall was gracefully and appropriately decorated under the personal supervision of Dr. Warren Porter. Upon the platform were portraits of Gen. Gideon Foster and Gen. Moses Porter, the rapier once owned by Capt. Jeremiah Page, and memorials of Capt. Samuel Flint. Upon the platform were seated many invited guests: there being a large delegation headed by their President, from the Lexington Historical Society. The hall was taxed to its utmost seating capacity, nearly five hundred people being present.

Shortly after half-past three, after the singing of a hymn written by Rev. James Flint and prayer by Rev. E. C. Ewing, President A. P. Putnam addressed the meeting, saying:

Ladies and Gentlemen: Other towns which were represented prominently in the battle of April 19, 1775, have from time to time very worthily commemorated the event. Lexington has done so this year: Concord is now doing so. I am not aware that Danvers has celebrated the day except as the old, undivided town commemorated it at the dedication of the monument to the men who fell in the engagement. That act of dedication was fifty-six years ago today. It is proper, we think, that the good old town should follow the example of her sister towns, and it has seemed meet that the Danvers Historical Society should take the initiation. That is why we are here today, for Danvers, as well as other towns, took an honorable part in that day's strife and warfare, a part which it has seemed to us should be told as it has not been before. Her citizens had long considered the course of affairs before April 19, 1775; had discussed in shop and store and tavern and town meeting the oppressive measures of the mother country, and had more and more entered into a determination to be free and not slaves. They organized militia and minute companies, trained them on their own Common in the town and on the Village Green, and more and more prepared themselves for action in case the hour of emergency should arrive. That hour arrived and not less than eight companies rushed forth to the scene of action.

The story will be told by those who are to follow me. I shall not take up their precious time. It is enough for me simply to announce the character of the meeting, the purposes of it and what we trust will be the lesson of it, and to welcome those who have been invited to join us as special guests of the occasion. They come, I might well say, from many a battlefield of that day, for the battlefield extended all the way from Lexington and Concord back to Lexington and on to Charlestown. It was one continuous day's work. And we have to greet friends here and now from Lexington, Concord, Acton and elsewhere, from Boston, from Salem and towns immediately around us, as well as invited guests from the town of Danvers. It is with great pleasure that we welcome Rev. Dr. George W. Porter, a native of Beverly, the President of the Lexington Historical Society, the nephew of General Moses Porter, one of the most illustrious soldiers of his time, whose portrait you see before you. We welcome Charles Parker of Lexington, the great grandson of the Capt. Parker who commanded the militia on Lexington Common. We welcome Luther Monroe. Ensign Robert Monroe, sixty-three years old, the first man killed at Lexington, was his grandfather's uncle."

Dr. Putnam then introduced Mr. Ezra D. Himes, the historiographer of the Danvers Historical Society who delivered the following interesting sketch of the part the Danvers men took in the battle, many of the facts being freshly collated and more fully given than in any other historical account on record:

WHAT THE DANVERS MEN DID.

"We meet today and in the language of the poet say—

'Backward, turn backward! O Time in thy flight,'

—so that we may in imagination believe the wheels of time actually turned back, and that we stand face to face with the men and the events of long ago.

What are we here to celebrate? We assemble near the anniversary of that great day, April 19, 1775, that day dear to all true American hearts, to celebrate events which have become historic, and which have become noted the world over. We are here to call to remembrance that day when the first blood of the revolution was shed by our townsmen and our countrymen in defence of their lives, their liberties and their homes.

We come also to commemorate that day which has been made glorious, and which is and shall be renowned as the day on which were begun those events which finally culminated in the emancipation of the American colonies from the yoke of England, and which resulted in the establishment of a new nation and the beginning of a career of future usefulness and glory. But more especially do we come to recount the deeds and to rehearse the brave actions of the men of Danvers, our ancestors, who took part in that first bloody resistance to the British authorities, and in which some of them gave their lives in defence of their country.

The storm which on the 19th day of April, 1775, burst upon this neighborhood was neither sudden nor unexpected: it had been brewing for a long time, and as we are told in Holy Writ of the wise man who built his house upon a strong foundation, so that when the rain descended and the floods came and the winds blew and beat upon that house, it fell not, because that man had builded wisely, with the solid rock for a foundation: so, when this April Revolutionary storm beat upon our ancestors, upon men wise in judgment, and with principles and convictions firm and enduring as the solid rock, they were not surprised, and this occurrence did not take them unawares, for, like the wise man, they were prepared and ready when the emergency came.

Governor Gage issued writs Sept. 1, 1774, convening the General Court at Salem on the 5th of October, but dissolved it by proclamation dated Sept. 28, 1774. The members, however, who were elected to it, pursuant to the course agreed upon, resolved themselves into a Provincial Congress. One of the members of this Congress was Dr. Samuel Holten, a man honored and beloved in Danvers. This body, on the 26th of October, adopted a plan for organizing the militia, maintaining it and calling it out when circumstances should render it necessary. It provided that one-quarter of the number enrolled should be held in readiness to muster at the shortest notice, who were called by the popular name of Minute Men. An executive authority—the Committee of Safety—was created, clothed with large discretionary powers, and another called the Committee of Supplies. Another very important act of this Congress was the authorizing of the collection of military stores.

The several towns also formed alarm-list companies. These were stirring times, but men were found equal to the occasion; men who had the courage of their convictions and who dared to declare that 'no danger shall affright, no difficulties shall intimidate us: and, if in support of our rights we are called to encounter even death, we are yet undaunted, sensible that he can never die too soon who lays down his life in support of the laws and liberties of his country.'

How soon some of them were to lay down their lives we shall presently see.

The town of Danvers had at that time some regular militia companies, and new companies were now formed to carry out the wishes of the late Congress, so that when the 19th of April arrived we find there were eight companies in the town.

Before I speak of the Danvers men and the part they took in this first battle, let me briefly relate what happened on the night of the 18th of April, and the early morning of the 19th.

As before stated, the Congress of which I have spoken authorized the collection of military stores, and one of the places where such stores had been collected was at Concord.

To seize these stores was an objective point on the part of the British General Gage: so on the night of the 18th of April, about 10.30 o'clock, the British troops, consisting of grenadiers, light infantry and marines, about 800 in all (the flower of the British army), under the command of Lieut. Colonel Smith, leave Boston and get across in boats to the Cambridge side, landing at Lechmere's Point, East Cambridge: they remain here awhile, and then march along and reach Menotomy (what is now Arlington) about 2 A. M. of the 19th, and then continue their march to Lexington, where they arrive in the early morning, and where the colonists are drawn up in arms to meet them, having been warned of the approach of the British, as you are all well aware, by Paul Revere in his midnight ride. And here in Lexington was the first resistance offered to the British on their march.

The question has often arisen, Who fired the first shot on that eventful morning? But no one has ever doubted that the first shot was fired and that it was heard around the world. And now let us leave the British troops at Lexington and come back to our own town of Danvers.

Wednesday the 19th day of April, 1775, has arrived. The glorious orb of day in his course through the heavens casts his beams aslant on the villages of our town, in which peace and harmony and intense loyalty dwell. He looks down upon our pastures green with grass, upon the peach trees in full bloom, upon the barley waving in the fields. His hot rays presage a warm and sultry day. This describes the early morning. It is now near nine o'clock. The hurried hoof-beats of a messenger's horse are heard in our streets, where so recently all was quiet. He announces in a loud, strong and vigorous voice: 'The British have marched to Lexington, our brothers there have met them, and a battle has ensued. Rise, brothers, and without delay hasten to their relief!'

No sooner is the message given than the men of Danvers prepare to depart for the scene of carnage. Let us bear in mind that the Danvers of 1775 was a very large town, including besides the present town of Danvers the town now known as Peabody. The messenger had undoubtedly first aroused the people of the south part of the town, which is now Peabody; and now, from field and mill, from farm and shop, from parsonage and humbler dwelling, do the men of Danvers rush forth to their country's defence. Truly can it be said of them:

'Swift as the summons came they left
The plow, mid furrow, standing still,
The half-ground corn grist in the mill,
The spade in earth, the axe in cleft.

They went where duty seemed to call,
They scarcely asked the reason why;
They only knew they could but die,
And death was not the worst of all.'

Eight companies marched from Danvers on that eventful day.

Three of the companies belonged to the Essex Regiment, commanded by Col. Timothy Pickering of Salem. One of these companies was under the command of Capt. Samuel Flint. It numbered about forty-five officers and men, and from their names it would seem that it came from what is now West Peabody and Danvers Centre.

Another was Capt. Samuel Epes's company, consisting of eighty-two officers and men. This company was from the south part of the town, now Peabody. The late Gen. Gideon Foster was an officer of this company.

I should remark here that upon the lists at the State house, Gen. Foster is not named as commander of a company; but, at the dedication of the monument in 1835, in his remarks he alluded to the fact that about ten days previous to the battle, he raised a company of minute men, and had command of them on that day. The men were taken from Capt. Epes' company.

On the morning of the 19th of April, Capt. Epes, after the alarm was given, hastened to Salem and saw his Colonel (Pickering) in his office, the Registry of Deeds, and obtained permission from him to march in advance of the regiment.

The third company belonging to this regiment was under the command of Capt. Jeremiah Page and consisted of thirty-seven officers and men.

A company of minute men commanded by Capt. Israel Hutchinson included fifty-three officers and men from the north part of Danvers, mostly, perhaps, from what is now Danversport, and many from Beverly.

Capt. Caleb Lowe's company, in all twenty-three officers and men, were evidently from the south part of the town. The sixth company was that of Capt. Asa Prince, and numbered thirty-seven officers and men from what is now Danvers Centre. The seventh company was an 'alarm company,' commanded by Capt. John Putnam, and had thirty-five officers and men from the north part of the town. The eighth organization was also an 'alarm company' of seventeen officers and men, commanded by Deacon Edmund Putnam and Rev. Benjamin Balch as first lieutenant. This company was evidently from Putnamville and Beaver Brook.

These were the companies that marched on the 19th. The day was exceedingly warm. They marched and ran to the scene of the conflict over fences, through fields, scaling stone walls, and now on the roads they travelled on, the feeling uppermost in their minds being how to get there the soonest. They probably could not have started much before 10 o'clock, and they must have reached Menotomy (now Arlington) in the neighborhood of half-past two or three. What a march, or run! What brave fellows they were, and what an heroic spirit they displayed! They did not go together, the men from the south part of the town going one way and those from the north part another. The cry was, On! on! any way to get there! The goal was finally reached. They arrived at Menotomy, and here with others they prepared to attack the British on their retreat into Charlestown.

While they are waiting let us go back to the early morn at Lexington. The British, after their encounter with the Lexington men, march on to Concord to carry out the purpose for which they started, to wit, to seize the stores already accumulated there. Here, too, as well as at Lexington, they meet with resistance, and finally are obliged to beat a retreat. Their ammunition having given out, they were in great danger of being captured had not Lord Percy's reinforcements met them near Lexington. The number of the colonists constantly increasing, and the firing continuing incessant, the British had nothing to do but to stand and fight or retreat. They begin a retreat, which is continued until they reach Charlestown. In the vicinity of 5 p. m., they reach Menotomy, where our men from Danvers and others are impatiently awaiting them that they may give them battle.

And now the British come in sight, and soon our Danvers men with others will engage them here. From the entrance of the British army into Menotomy until they leave the place, they are beset behind and before. Both sides fight with great vigor. Paige, the historian, says that the carnage was greater here than in any other town on that day. Greater, indeed, than in all others combined, if it be true, as has been stated by a diligent investigator, that at least twenty-two of the Americans and probably more than twice that number of the British fell in West Cambridge.

It seems that the Danvers men, or many of them, had stationed themselves in the yard of Jason Russell, not far from the centre of Menotomy. I understand the house is still standing. In this yard there were many bundles of shingles, looking as though the proprietor was about to shingle his house. Here a sort of barricade was made with these shingles, and inside of this enclosure they stationed themselves and attacked the British soldiers. Near this place is a hill, around which the road wound in such a manner as to conceal the British.

King, in his address at the dedication of the monument to the memory of the Danvers men who fell on that day, states that 'rumor had deceived our men as to the force of the British: it was their expectation here to have intercepted their retreat. But they had little space of preparation; they soon saw the British in solid column descending the hill on their right, and at the same moment discovered a large flank guard advancing on their left.'

The men here in this enclosure (our Danvers men forming a part), finding themselves in this fearful and trying position, fought desperately and gallantly. The British, too, were desperate. They were mad clear through. They had been harassed all the way thus far on their retreat, but most of the way the provincials had attacked them from under cover. Now to have surrounded them, they were determined to show no quarter.

In this trap our Danvers men were caught: they were pressed so furiously by the British that some of the men—possibly some of our Danvers men—were driven into the cellar of a neighboring house, where they were inhumanly treated.

In this yard of Jason Russell's, or in the cellar of the house above referred to, perished the men whom we are proud to call the Danvers martyrs. As in the past, so now, let us rewrite in letters of living light upon the scroll of the fair record of our good old town the names of those heroes who fell at Menotomy—Benjamin Daland, jr., Henry Jacobs, jr., George Southwick, jr., Samuel Cook, jr., Eben Goldthwait, Perley Putnam, Jotham Webb—who died fighting for their homes and against oppression.

Nor would we forget the wounded of that day, Dennison Wallis and Nathan Putnam, nor the others, officers and men, who survived the fearful fight and lived many years after, but who have all long since passed away. But I must hasten on. The remainder of the story is soon told. The British go on in their retreat, and at dusk have neared the haven they longed for—Charlestown—where they remain for the night. The day is over, the sun has now disappeared from view and soon the darkness of night will cover the scene. What a day it has been! What scenes have been enacted! The dead are tenderly and reverently cared for by the survivors, who know that they have nobly and gloriously fallen, and that—

No more on life's parade shall meet
That brave and fallen few;
On fame's eternal camping ground
Their silent tents are spread,
And glory guards, with solemn round,
The bivouac of the dead.

The troops remain over night accommodating themselves as best they can to the circumstances in which they are placed. The British have been beaten and have been driven back to the place from which they started on the 18th and 19th of April. The war has begun in earnest. There being no immediate prospect of another battle our Danvers men return to their homes, bearing with them their dead and wounded, and on Friday, the 21st, these men, who two days before started for the battle with their comrades, full of life and hope, are now laid to rest in the soil of their own homes and among their kindred. Brave souls! ye gave up your lives for others. Greater love hath no man than this that he lay down his life for his country and his friends.

I was to give a general sketch of the events of the 19th. To other hands is left the task of filling in the details as to individuals, who and what they were and the part they took on that eventful day.

But for the brave men of this and succeeding battles of the Revolution, we should not today have a country to love. Let us remember the debt we owe to these brave heroes and tell it to our children, that they in turn may tell it to their children, and to their children's children, and thus may we keep their memory fresh and green—both now and in all time to come.”

Hon. Alden P. White of Danvers read the following letter from John G. Whittier :

OAK KNOLL, APRIL 16, 1891.

Dear Miss Hunt :

I fear that I shall not be able to be present at the meeting of the Danvers Historical Society on the 20th inst. I am sure that the occasion will not be lacking interest, as it will recall the heroism and self-sacrifice of the old historic town a century ago. Your society is doing a good and needed work, and it deserves the hearty support of all our citizens.

I am very truly thy friend,

JOHN G. WHITTIER.

D. Webster King of Boston, a native of Peabody, read a paper concerning Capt. Samuel Flint and General Gideon Foster, both of whom led companies to Lexington. Mr. King is a descendant of these two heroes. A brief abstract is here presented :

“Of the Flints who served in the Revolution, history records but two who were residents of Danvers, Samuel and William ; these were descendants respectively of two brothers, Thomas and William, who emigrated to Salem probably previous to 1640. They were evidently in favor of Free Trade ; surely they were not High Protectionists ; whatever may have been the degree of loyalty of the English ancestors, it is evident that their descendants, in 1775, held slight respect for British rule.

I have no record of Wm. Flint's connection with the battle of Lexington, but he was one of the soldiers from Danvers engaged in the Revolutionary War.

Captain Samuel Flint was in command of one of the seven companies from Danvers which answered to their country's call in the hour of peril, April 19, 1775. It was rumored that Capt. Flint was among the slain, and his return to his family and friends was a joyous surprise. He was, however, destined to die a soldier's death for on the seventh of October, 1777, at Stillwater, he was slain at the head of his company. An officer once asked him where he should find him on a certain occasion ; his reply was worthy the proudest days of Sparta : ‘Where the enemy is, there will you find me.’ Capt. Flint was probably the only commissioned officer from Danvers killed in the Revolution.

Gen. Gideon Foster was born Feb. 13, 1748, in a house formerly standing at the corner of Foster and Lowell streets, Peabody. His father was Gideon Foster, a native of Ipswich, who had married Lydia Goldthwait of Danvers. Gideon Foster married Marcia, daughter of Daniel Jacobs, Oct. 6, 1750; their children were Gideon, John, Marcia and Lydia, none of whom married, so the family is now extinct.

Gen. Foster was of a commanding and impressive bearing as I well remember. Of the company drafted here he was chosen commander and the first time he led them to face the enemy was on Sunday, the twenty-sixth of Feb., 1775, when Col. Leslie attempted to destroy the stores at Salem and Danvers. I quote Gen. Foster's own words from his address fifty-six years ago: 'About ten days before, I had been chosen to command a company of minute men. They all assembled on this very spot where we are now assembled and in about four hours from the time of meeting, they travelled on foot (full half the way upon the run) sixteen miles, and saluted the enemy. Three of them were slain upon that day. I alone remain to tell their story.'

In 1792, Capt. Foster was promoted to the rank of Colonel: in 1796, he was chosen Brigadier-General and in 1801 he was elected Major General by the Legislature.

Gen. Foster was probably the last surviving commissioned officer of the Revolution."

Mr. Eben Putnam spoke as follows:

THE PUTNAMS AT LEXINGTON FIGHT.

"I have been asked to tell you something of 'Captains Edmund and John Putnam and others.' I shall confine myself to the Putnams, but were I to include amongst the 'others' all of that name who were present at the Retreat of the British from Concord, or even those there from Danvers, I should be taking the time allotted to the more eloquent and interesting speakers yet to follow.

Before I pass to a more extended notice of those to whom such is due, it is meet that I indulge in a brief résumé of the part which the Putnam family took on that memorable 19th of April.

Unfortunately the tax lists of Danvers for 1775 are missing, but from those of 1773 I find that thirty-six by the name of Putnam, most of whom were heads of families, were taxed at that date; and in 1775 I find that thirty-four Putnams marched from this town to Lexington. Probably there were at that period capable of bearing arms, about forty of this name in Danvers, so it is evident that the martial spirit of the family was thoroughly aroused.

Upon the Lexington Alarm Lists at the State House may be seen the names of eighty-six Putnams, all of the Danvers family, who hastened to Lexington from various Massachusetts towns upon the alarm. Not all reached that place in time to get a shot at the retreating British, but those from Danvers, Beverly, Chelmsford, Reading, Medford and Sudbury did; and of our Danvers men, you have already heard how, in that fatal walled enclosure, Perley Putnam was killed and his brother Nathan severely wounded.

These two young men were sons of Jonathan Putnam, a great-great-grandson of my emigrant ancestor. Perley was born on the 17th of March, 1754, and had but reached his 21st year.

Nathan was his senior by not quite five years. These young men were in the Company of Israel Hutchinson, which had for its second lieutenant Enoch, son of Jethro Putnam, a member of the same younger branch of the family, and who afterward rose by successive steps in the service to the grade of colonel. With them was also Tarrant Putnam, a second cousin of Enoch, and whose widow married Captain Robert Foster of Revolutionary fame.

Nathan Putnam had in 1771, married the daughter of Dr. Amos Putnam, whose portrait hangs upon our walls.

I find but little mention of Nathan in after years except that he continued in the service during the siege of Boston and at one time enjoyed the office of constable. He died in 1783.

Still another brother was Jeremiah Putnam, afterward a captain in the 27th Foot Regiment, who served long and honorably in the war. A sister of these three brothers married Henry Putnam, the son of another martyr to Liberty on that eventful day. The father of this Henry bore the same name as his son, and was at this time living in Medford, in that part near Charlestown, where at one time he kept school. He was a veteran of Louisburg, a man of experience in military matters and had earned the commission of lieutenant which he held during the Louisburg Expedition. Although exempt from military duty he accompanied the troops to Lexington and fell in action. His sword which he carried at Louisburg and other military trappings are in the possession of his descendants. The son Henry had marched as a first lieutenant in Jeremiah Page's company and was quite badly wounded (a fact not mentioned in any of the chronicles of the fight) and remained at Medford, where his wife joined him. Upon the morning of the 17th of June, she drove him to the foot of Bunker Hill, and he did good service on that and other occasions, as he served throughout the siege.

Deacon Edmund Putnam, who so gallantly led his band of minute men, or more properly speaking, Alarm List, was the son of John Putnam and a great-great-grandson of the first John, through his second son Nathaniel, and was born 27 June, 1725. Deacon Edmund was a man of great strength, both mentally and physically, and his character was highly esteemed. Rev. Benjamin Balch acted as lieutenant of this company.

LOST in the battle of Menotomy by Nathan Putnam, of Capt. Hutchinson's Company, who was then badly wounded, a French Firelock, marked D, No. 6, with a marking Iron, on the Breech. Said Putnam carried it to a cross Road near a mill. Whoever has said Gun in Possession, is desired to return it to Col. Manfield of Lynn, or to the Selectmen of Danvers, and they shall be rewarded for their Trouble.

Danvers, May 16th, 1775. From New England Chronicle or The Essex Gazette, May 25, 1775.

At the time of the Lexington Alarm, Deacon Edmund was living in the old Daniel Rea house, still standing on the road to Putnamville, although at one time he lived over the line in Topsfield.

In his company were Ensign Tarrant Putnam, Sergeant Benjamin Putnam, and Private Aaron Putnam, all of the tribe of Nathaniel and near neighbors of their captain.

Benjamin and Aaron were credited with but one day's service. How this is, I do not understand, as it seems improbable that they would have gone to Cambridge and back on the same day, to say nothing of having taken part in the battle. Sergeant Benjamin had a son in Captain Jeremiah Page's company and Aaron's brother Phineas served in the company of Captain John Putnam, the half-brother of Edmund. Captain John Putnam was born in 1720 and died in 1786. He was a man of great influence among his neighbors and was, I imagine, of a more pugnacious disposition than Edmund. John Putnam as well as his brother Edmund, served the town in many capacities having often been selectman and on various important committees. His title of captain adhered to him through life, while that of his brother Edmund speedily gave way to his older, more dignified, and sober title of deacon. While Captain Edmund's company was one of the smallest of our Danvers companies, that of John's was much larger. Among Captain John's men were Corporal Asa, likewise a deacon in the First Church, Phineas, Enos, Joseph, and James Phillips, a son of Dr. Amos Putnam.

Deacon Edmund Putnam was one of the first to adopt the Universalist faith in the vicinity and among his descendants may be reckoned one of the most prominent Unitarian divines.

We must not forget, that there were equally true and brave men among the Loyalists of those days. A Danvers man, James Putnam, had, previous to the Revolution, risen to high honor in the legal profession. He was born just below the present home of the poet Whittier, and there his brother Archelaus still lived at the outbreak of the Revolution.

Another brother, Dr. Eben Putnam, lived in Salem and was a member of the Committee of Safety. All of these brothers were unjustly accused by the mob of being tories, and suffered considerable annoyance.

The battle of Lexington lost James Putnam his extensive properties in Worcester, sent him a refugee to England and lost to Massachusetts the best lawyer of the time, one to whom the patriot Adams owed much of his legal ability. His letters in my possession tell of the most sincere love for his country. Both of his brothers regained the confidence of their fellow-citizens, and each in his own way served his country.

Another Danvers man has been deeply wronged by tradition and I cannot close without correcting the mistake. Timothy Putnam is said, in the History of Essex County, to have left his native hillside and fled, a tory, to Nova Scotia.

In fact, Timothy Putnam died here in 1756, and his widow, who had previously been the wife of Caleb Putnam, married Richard Upham and in 1761, with her family of young sons removed to Truro, Nova Scotia and there the sons founded a flourishing branch of the Putnam family, who mistakenly pride themselves upon being descended from refugees.

I have not told you of the young son of Major Ezra Putnam, who, aged 16, went as a drummer to Lexington and served throughout the siege, nor of the boy Amos Putnam, son of a Danvers man, who had settled in New Salem. This boy who died of exhaustion on the rapid march to Lexington, is to be honored as much as his more fortunate cousin, Perley, who fell by British bullets.

The martial spirit of the family did not die away with the evacuation of Boston, for over one hundred of its members served in the Continental Army, and in the second great war of Liberty, there were at least three hundred bearing the name amongst the 'Boys in Blue,' and the record is not yet complete."

Doctor Putnam then introduced Hon. Robert S. Rantoul, Mayor of Salem, who spoke as follows:

"Many of the acts of our lives are well enough forgotten, not that they are in themselves bad or mean, or necessarily selfish, but that they are trivial and have no ultimate results. They produce no ripple upon the current of human events. But now and then a great historic event occurs, and when that happens, such an event as we are here today to commemorate, it is a thing not to be forgotten, but to be perpetuated and kept in memory to the remotest time. Therefore it is not only a pleasure but a solemn duty to attend an occasion like this, and to help in every way in our power to hand down to our posterity the recollections of the virtues and excellences of our ancestry. Had there been time, I should have tried to emphasize this single view of the extraordinary transactions of the day which we are now celebrating—a view of the extremely homely, domestic, personal character of this encounter at Lexington. It always seems to me to be a hand-to-hand fight of the nations. The relations of the colonists to the representatives of the British government were so peculiar, so intimate, the colonists were such thorough-going law and order men, conservative in every fibre, respecting the law, desiring to obey the law, respecting the emissaries of the law who had been sent here to govern them, that the colonists who stood on Lexington Common had a terrible task to bring their minds to the position in which they found themselves that day. The very muskets which they took to defend themselves with were known as 'King's arms.' They were fighting at their own thresholds, behind their own stone fences, in presence of their own families and children; they were fighting at Concord Bridge with their own venerated pastor looking from his own study window upon his own parishioners to see them quit themselves like men, as they did on that glorious occasion. There was none of the flaunting of banners and the blare of trumpets and the excitement and chivalry and romance which carries young men off on a march with an army to attack a distant or foreign enemy. If there was any of it, it was on the British side. I think the feeling those men had in their minds was not so much aggressive as conservative. I think they felt they were driven to the wall, that they were cornered, that there was no escape consistent with self-respect and the preservation of the rights of Englishmen from the dilemma in which the British government had placed them. Therefore they resolved that the last price—the price of blood—was not too great a price to pay for the liberties of Englishmen. It is not reasonable to suppose that they saw very clearly the vast dimensions of the struggle which was before them or the results which were to follow. It is idle to think that they were fighting for a nation as wide as a continent, spanning from one ocean to another, or anything of that sort. I think that they studied out from Blackstone their legal rights as Englishmen, and I think that they knew their rights, and knowing, dare maintain.”

The afternoon exercises came to a close with the singing of “America.”

The exercises were continued during the evening; among the speakers was Hon. M. Chamberlain who said:

“What actuated the men of the Revolution in the course which they took? Was it actual taxation? No. Not a penny was ever paid by them on an ounce of tea, not a penny was ever paid for a stamp under the stamp act. From Maine to Georgia, never was a cent taken out of the pockets of the colonists by reason of the taxation of the British Government. What was it, then, against which they took up arms? It was against the principle of the right to tax as expressed in the stamp act and kindred measures. The marvel of all this matter to me is that 3,000,000 of people should take up arms, not in consequence of what they suffered, but in consequence of what they apprehended; not because it bore heavily upon them, but because of the right. There was a principle at stake which touched their patriotism, and a principle which touched their religion; and for that they went to war, for that they suffered hardships. Who were they? They were men of clear intelligence and right thinking, of determined perseverance. They had thought this thing out, and they knew what their rights were. Those were the men to whom we are so much indebted.

What was the course of instruction which so impressed those men of New England with a desire to vindicate their rights and to withstand and confront and finally to conquer the most colossal power of modern times? Patriotism was then, as it ought to be today and forever, a religious sentiment with them. It was a part of their religion not to submit false principles in civil government any more than in religion or in church government. That lay at the foundation of their action.”

At the close of Mr. Chamberlain's address, the Grand Army Post entered the hall. They were greeted with applause, the entire audience standing. After they had stacked their arms and colors in front of the platform, President Putnam extended to them an eloquent welcome.

President Capen of Tufts College spoke in part as follows:

"I have been wondering what my own connection is with all that has been said. I was not born in Essex County. I was not born in Middlesex county. I was born on the other side of the Neponset river, beyond the Blue Hills. And though I have a Revolutionary ancestry on both sides, so far as I know, I have no relationship, no kindred with any of the men who fought at Lexington and Concord. But it is enough for one to be an American citizen to have contact with the day and the events that you celebrate. It is true that for sixteen years now I have had my residence in that most historic spot in Massachusetts, in the new world. Every morning I may look out of my chamber window before I rise from my bed and see that granite shaft rising to greet the sun in his coming, which commemorates one of the grandest and most historic acts in the history of mankind. And from another window I may survey the road over which the British soldiers tramped on their way to Lexington, and see some of the points where the men of Essex County intercepted them on their return at nightfall. No man can live there without breathing that atmosphere, without catching its inspiration, without having some of its glorious memories stir within him, and without having the lessons of this noble past burned into his soul.

What are some of those lessons? First, those men, though subjects of the British crown, had developed an independence which was entirely different from Englishmen. They were thoroughly American. That is the lesson we want to learn here—to be thoroughly American. We welcome here the oppressed of all nations, but we want them to come leaving the old-world associations and memories behind them, to come here to fight under the flag, to educate their children here; we want them to come here prepared to enter into our ideas and institutions, and to help perpetuate them.

The second lesson is the lesson of patriotism and love of country as distinguished from the spirit of commercialism. The spirit in our politics that would make business interests of more importance than the principles on which this Government was founded—the principles of humanity, liberty and justice—that spirit is the danger that besets us, was the peril that surrounded us before the War of the Rebellion and that compelled these brave men whom I see before me belonging to this Grand Army post to go to the war.

We want to put into the foreground the spirit of patriotism that was so admirably illustrated by these men of the Revolution."

Dr. A. P. Putnam read the following poem, which he had written expressly for the occasion:

OUR HEROES OF 1775 AND OUR "BOYS IN BLUE."

 BY REV. A. P. PUTNAM, D. D.

One April morn fleet tidings came,
 That, out New England's dear old town,
 The Red coats, proud and gay, had marched
 To serve by guilty deeds the Crown.
 Our fathers heard the warning cry,
 Seized sword and gun with eager hand,
 Quick left the plough and bench and hearth,
 And flew like lightning o'er the land.
 No storied past, of Greece or Rome,
 Can tell the tale of nobler braves
 Than Danvers men, who "ran" that day,
 To fight; nor feared untimely graves.
 Stern, dauntless Captain Flint, he said:—
 "Where face the foe, there I am found;"
 Dyed with their blood yon Cambridge heights,
 And, with his own, Stillwater's ground.
 See here the battered steel he flashed,
 The gory belt that girt him fast,
 As there he led his comrades on,
 And gave his precious life at last.
 A gallant hero, too, was Webb,
 Nor deemed his nuptial suit too fine,
 In which to act a soldier's part,
 And pour his gifts at Freedom's shrine;
 But donned his best, and kissed his bride,
 And sped to make the sacrifice,—
 The wedding garb his glory shroud,
 The fatal ball his pearl of price.
 And Spartan mothers still were here,
 Who counted not the loss or pain,
 But bade their fair and valiant sons,
 "Come with the shield or on it slain."
 Dame Quaker Southwick scorned to share
 With "men of war" her basket store;
 Yet swift her heart outran her creed,
 And gave them all they asked, and more.
 For when dread hours that peril all,
 Arrive as there at Lexington,—
 Our discords vanish into air,
 And love of country maketh one.
 Oh! Beauty of our Israel,
 Whose bloom so early suffered blight,
 And ye who from the victor's chase
 Returned to prosper still the Right,—
 No tongue of ours just meed can give,
 Nor granite shaft that art can raise;
 The Nation is your monument,
 And Liberty shall sing your praise.
 Say, did ye bend from heaven and see
 The faith that armed our "boys in blue,"
 Who, when Rebellion struck the flag,
 And storm and darkness hid the view,

Sprang to their feet and rushed to save
The starry Union of their sires,
Till impious and colossal wrongs
Went down amidst consuming fires:
Till smoke and cloud had cleared away,
And stilled was cannon's thunderous roar,
While high the banner of our joy
In splendid triumph waved once more?
The wine press of our woe they trod,
In winter cold and summer heat:
The broad expanse, the mountain pass,
They tracked with sore, but patient feet.
The weary toil, the sleepless watch,
The midnight damp, the fevered brain,
The furious charge, the awful strife,
And shot and sabre's quivering pain;
Torn limbs whose comfort was the sod,
Sad hearts that pined in dungeons drear,
And crowded wards that dreamed of home,
Nor saw its pitying angels near:—
Here, too, the stripes that healed our hurt,
The Rock from which was hewn the State;
And here, as there, forever shine
The names that now we celebrate.
God give us grace to know full well,
Who sowed the seed that we might reap:
And, while eternal harvests grow,
Let Memory her jewels keep.

NOTE.—The above abstract of the proceedings 20 Apr., 1891, is taken from a more lengthy account in the Apr., 1891, issue of the Salem Press Historical and Genealogical Record.

THE OLD TRAINING FIELD.

The piece of land at the Centre known as the common or the training field is inseparably connected with the military history of Danvers, for according to the bequest of Nathaniel Ingersoll, it is "for a training place for ever." Last year, 1894, on June 30, the boulder, with its noble inscription was dedicated in the presence of many hundreds of people of our own and neighboring towns.*

Regarding the training field, Upham is more than usually eloquent. In his description of the place and its former owner he says "it was probably used as a training field at the first settlement of the village. From the slaughter of Bloody Brook, the storming of the Narragansett Fort, and all the early Indian wars: from the Heights of Abraham, Lake George, Lexington, Bunker Hill, Brandywine, Pea Ridge, and a hundred other battle fields, a lustre is reflected back upon this village parade ground. It is associated with all the military traditions of the country, down to the late rebellion. Lothrop, Davenport, Gardners, Dodges, Raymonds, Putnams, Porters, Hutchinsons, Herricks, Flints, and others, who have taught or learned the manual or drill, are names inscribed on the rolls of history for deeds of heroism and prowess."

The illustration made from a photograph by Mr. D. E. Woodward, of Danvers Centre is remarkably clear. The boulder was found in one of the quarries situated in a part of the old town, a section which anciently contributed her quota to the training band of Danvers, and many of the men whose records are enrolled in this volume came from that part of the town.

Of Nathaniel Ingersoll, the donor of the land it may be said that he was an upright, God fearing man. He was the son of Richard Ingersoll who was the lessee of the Townsend Bishop farm, now better known as the Nurse farm. Richard Ingersoll died when Nathaniel was but about eleven years old and the young man went to live on the Orchard farm of Gov. Endicott, that he might the better learn how to carry on the farm left him by his father. At an early age he married Hannah Collins of Lynn and built on a spot a little in the rear of the parsonage at the Centre. There he resided for seventy years. Near by stood the block house where a watch was continually kept in the years when Indian raids were feared. He commanded the respect of all, and rarely was his judgment at fault. At his house were held the parish and church meetings and when the church was organized we find that he was one of the two deacons. As he had no children to provide for he seems to have made no attempt to accumulate property and during his life was always liberal. He gave land for the church in which he had a deep interest. He died in 1719 and lies in an unmarked grave.

*Among those present was Genville M. Dodge, a native of Danvers, whose gallantry at Pea Ridge and on other fields won him the highest rank. He has been a major-general in the army and a member of Congress and had charge of the surveys of the Union Pacific R. R.

The cost of the boulder and expenses connected with its preparation and erection were met from an appropriation of $125 by the town and the subscriptions of a few public spirited citizens. The names of the committee having the matter in charge were Alden P. White, chairman: John W. Porter, Charles B. Rice, Charles H. Preston and Eben Putnam.

THE LEXINGTON MONUMENT.

This shaft imposing from its very simplicity is built of hewn sienite and was erected according to the tablet on the monument on the 60th anniversary, 1835. On the easterly side is a slab of white marble with the names of the Danvers men who fell at Lexington, 19 April, 1775, as follows:

Samuel Cook, æt. 33; Benjamin Daland, æt. 25; George Southwick, æt. 25; Jotham Webb, æt. 22; Henry Jacobs, æt. 22; Eben'r Goldthwaite, æt. 22; Perley Putnam, æt. 21.

Gen. Gideon Foster placed the corner stone and delivered a brief address. The Danvers Light Infantry did escort duty. On that day nineteen survivors of the Revolutionary soldiers were present. For Gen. Foster's account of the battle and organization of the Danvers companies, see page 106 et seq. of Hanson's Danvers.

PINES AT DANVERSPORT.

George A. Wilson

At the annual town meeting of 1895, the town voted to place markers over the graves of Revolutionary soldiers and appointed a committee to locate such graves. It is hoped that the next annual town meeting will appropriate a sum of money to print a list of the names of Revolutionary soldiers buried in town and the location of the graves.
